German circles now understand that NS is much too small an organization to overtake the entire Administration of Norway; NS leadership must quarterly report the exact number of members to Stab Wegener who controls adherence and passes the report to Nazi Party in Berlin and German Reichsinnenministeriums Norway office under Doctor STUCKART; Berlin high authorities say NS must double the membership before the end of 1942; Norwegian circles regard the change of relations between occupying power and Quisling Regime possible if NS fails to double membership.
